Guest Lecture Series 2011

Educating Doctors and Nurses on How to Recognise and Manage Dementia: Successes and Failures

Dimity Pond
Chair NSW PHC, Head of Department
Discipline of General Practice
University of Newcastle

Professor Pond has been a speaker at many national and international conferences. She has both practical experience as a current general practitioner in clinical practice, and a history of research grants and publications in general practice research. She has focused her research on dementia, depression and Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) and has taken a particular interest in developing and evaluating strategies for improving the way in which GPs and practice nurses recognise dementia and help people manage it.

Professor Pond will describe some of the successful strategies that have been developed as a result of her work and allow us to learn from the experience gained with one or two less successful efforts.

Thursday, 24th March at 5.30pm
Lecture Theatre; Building 28 – Graduate School of Medicine
University of Wollongong; Northfields Avenue; Wollongong
Light refreshments will be provided.

For those who are unable to attend in person the lecture will also be streamed live at www.ustream.tv/user/NSWACTDTSC

Letter of Attendance provided for PD purposes.

This is the second of the 2011 round of the regular Wollongong based guest lectures offered by the NSW/ACT Dementia Training Study Centre. These lectures will compliment the Guest Lecture series being offered elsewhere in NSW and ensure that local partners are given access to information on current research.
